

WCF-Global

Geneva March 21, 2018

Leadership of the Future: Young Leadership Power

Moderator: Dr. Suddha Chakravarti

Speakers: Elisabeth Sünder; Felix Hill; Vuk Bjelajac; Lea Katunaric

Arnaud Frey

Vuk Bjelajac

- Young entrepreneur in advertising industry.
- Self-motivated and responsible BBA and BSc student.
- Professional commercial pilot and aviation enthusiast.

- “Technowlegde”
- Comfort zone
- Personal qualities for 21st century

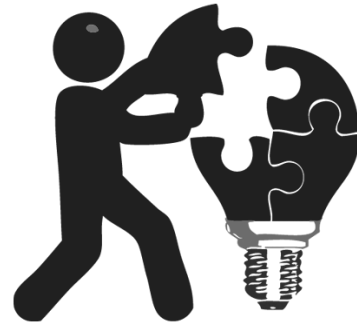

Lea Katunarić

A decisive MBA student of International Marketing with strong interpersonal skills and unbounded creativity.

Warrior's mind with a Writer's soul.

Skills

Competencies

Future?

Elisabeth Sünder

- Third Year Student at EU Business School
- Specialization:
- Work Experience: Philip Morris; JLR
- Passion:

The three main points I am going to discuss about are:

- Competencies in the intrapersonal domain
- Competencies related to local, global, and digital citizenship
- Competencies associated with creativity and innovation

Felix Hill

- Society's view on every aspect of the industry will always remain short-term view based.
- this view leading to influences on every section of the industry including the set of skills expected of graduates, employees working within firms, organizations, etc.
- Over the last ten-year period due to technological innovation, globalization, political instability, etc. The skill set expected of future young leaders has widely changed.
- Firms and organizations alike have begun to set their barriers.
- That is why I have concluded that Young leaders of the future must prioritize flexibility, adaptiveness and finally innovation